

HUNT BUILDING STARTS SHORTLY

Dan Hunt Announces Excavation Will Begin Monday

AT FOURTH AND MAIN

Modern Department Store Will Rise From Lot at Fine Corner

Excavating will be started on the new Hunt building on the southwest corner of Fourth and Main streets about September 15, according to a definite announcement Saturday by Dan Hunt, head of the Hunt company, and owner of the lot. While it was first planned to erect a large hotel building at this corner, this plan has been abandoned temporarily at least.

The new building is to be 100 feet long, fronting on two sides—Main street and Fourth street. It is to be five stories, built of reinforced concrete and brick, and will be occupied by the Hunt company. There is a 40-foot space between the rear of the building occupied by King's market and the Texas building, and in this space is to be built a freight entrance equipped with freight elevators.

Lot Is Centrally Located

The lot on which the Hunt building is to be erected is on a commanding corner and is virtually in the center of the business district.

With the completion of this building and the removal of the Hunt store, Hunt said Saturday his company will immediately begin an expansion that will place the establishment in the front rank of department stores in the southwest. One of the most important expansions is the opening of a large mail order department and an intensive development of mail order, as well as retail merchandising.

The announcement of Hunt's plans will doubtless dispel much of the gloom that has accompanied the recent depression, and the faint-hearted to renew their faith in Tulsa. Hunt declared Saturday he is not fearful of the future, but rather, he believes the greatest period of prosperity and growth is ahead of this city.

TEACHING FIRST AID

Red Cross Inaugurates Classes Among Women of Tulsa—Course Open to Every Woman in City.

That a woman—whether wife, mother or daughter—should know the principles of first aid is to be considered most important still, and the Red Cross is to stand off disease, as being pointed out by the home nursing instructor for the Tulsa county Red Cross, Mrs. William D. Gladys, in announcing the beginning of classes in nursing and home care of the sick in the fall.

And Gladys, a woman whose work in the Red Cross nursing service has won many friends—arranges for this course and the other arrangements are made the better as Mrs. Gladys' winter schedule will shortly be rounded into shape. Mrs. Gladys will be this week to visit different points of the county, whence requests for classes have come and other places where she desires to arouse the interest of the women of the community.

A class of negro women stopped because of the riot will be given the remaining three lessons in their course beginning September 6, and will take the examinations.
